Aluminum Gravity Die Casting

Engineered to perform & trust

Aluminum Gravity Die Casting (also known as Kokil Casting) is a manufacturing method in which molten aluminum is poured into reusable metal molds (usually made of steel or cast iron) and allowed to solidify under the effect of gravity. Unlike pressure die casting, no external pressure is applied to fill the mold.

Aluminum Die Casting

Engineered to perform & trust

Aluminum Die Casting is a manufacturing method in which molten aluminum is injected into steel molds under high pressure to form metal parts.

Below is a brief and clear explanation of its basic principle and key points:

Aluminum Low Pressure Die Casting(LPDC)

Aluminum Low Pressure Die Casting (LPDC) is a casting process in which molten aluminum is pushed into a mold using low gas pressure (usually air or nitrogen). In this method, the metal fills the mold from the bottom upward, which allows for better control of the filling process and improves the quality of the casting.
